Abstract and panel submission deadline	Notification of acceptance	Revised abstracts due

The Slavic Linguistics Society invites submissions for its 22nd Annual Meeting, to be held in person in Skopje, Macedonia, from 1 to 3 September 2027. We welcome work on any aspect of Slavic linguistics, in any theoretical framework or methodology.

SUBMISSION ROUTES

01 INDIVIDUAL PAPERS

Individual paper abstracts must be written in English and may not exceed 500 words, excluding figures and references. Abstracts must be anonymous: remove author names, affiliations, acknowledgments and identifying self-references.

02 THEMATIC PANELS

Panel proposals should include an English-language panel abstract of up to 1,000 words, excluding figures and references, the names, email addresses and affiliations of all participants, and the titles of their talks. Two- or four-hour panels typically include four or eight presenters. Each panel presenter must also submit an anonymous individual abstract through the individual paper form.

PRESENTATION AND PEER REVIEW

All individual abstracts, including those proposed within thematic panels, undergo anonymous peer review. Talks are 20 minutes, followed by 5 minutes for discussion and 5 minutes for changing rooms.

SUBMISSION RULES AND AWARDS

Each applicant may submit one single-authored and one jointly authored abstract, or two co-authored abstracts, across general and thematic sessions. Abstracts containing student authors are automatically considered for student travel awards and the annual Townsend Award.

MEMBERSHIP AND PRACTICAL INFORMATION

Active SLS membership is required for presenting, but not for initial submission. Participants who may need a letter of support for visa applications or funding purposes should contact the organizers. All conference-related communication and submission support will be handled through the official conference email. The individual paper form accepts plain text. If a figure, a table, IPA or other special formatting is indispensable, please contact the organizers before submission.
